

The JLPT (Japanese Language Proficiency Test) listening sections differ in structure and complexity across the five levels (N1 to N5), with each level requiring progressively more advanced comprehension skills.

N5 Level Listening Questions:

At the N5 level, listening questions are straightforward and usually based on short conversations about everyday topics. The format is simple:

1. Question Asked: The question is asked before the audio begins, so the listener knows what to focus on.
2. Audio Played: A short conversation or monologue is played, which contains the answer to the question.
3. Question Repeated: After the audio, the question is repeated to confirm what the listener is supposed to answer.
4. Time to Choose: Time is provided for the listener to select the correct answer from the given options, usually based on understanding simple information like prices, locations, or times.

Question Style:

- Picture-based Questions: You listen to a short conversation and choose the correct answer from a set of pictures.
- Basic Dialogues: Very short conversations followed by questions with simple options, often about concrete and obvious details like time or location.
- Questions are direct, requiring basic information recall from the conversation.

Example 1:

Conversation:

- Japanese:
 - 女: タクシーは高いですね。750円かかります。
 - 男: えっ、そんなに高いですか？前に乗ったときは630円でしたよ。
 - 女: 本当ですか？でも、このエリアは観光地だから、料金が上がったかもしれませんね。

 - Man: Oh, it's white with big pockets? Three buttons sound nice too.
 - Woman: Yes, it's perfect for winter.

Question:

- Japanese: 女性のコートはどれですか？
- Romaji: Josei no kōto wa dore desu ka?
- English: Which one is the woman's coat?

Answer: Option 4

N4 Level Listening Questions:

At the N4 level, listening questions become slightly more complex compared to N5. Conversations are still related to everyday situations, but they tend to be longer and more involved.

- Question Asked: Just like at the N5 level, the question is provided before the audio starts, helping the listener focus on key details.
- Audio Played: A longer conversation is played, often involving more than one exchange between the speakers. The conversations might include additional details, opinions, or minor complications like conflicting ideas or conditions.
- Question Repeated: After the conversation, the question is repeated, confirming what information the listener needs to extract.
- Time to Choose: After the question, time is given for the listener to think about the answer and choose from the given options. These choices may involve more nuanced understanding, like preferences, conditions, or indirect suggestions.

Question Style:

- Picture-based Questions: As with N5, pictures are often used, but the conversations are more descriptive. Listeners may need to pay attention to details like positioning, actions, or decisions made within the dialogue.
- Expanded Dialogues: Conversations at the N4 level tend to involve more back-and-forth, with speakers often discussing ideas or suggesting alternatives. Questions may involve interpreting suggestions, reasoning, or conditions that were raised during the conversation.

Example 1 (N4 level):

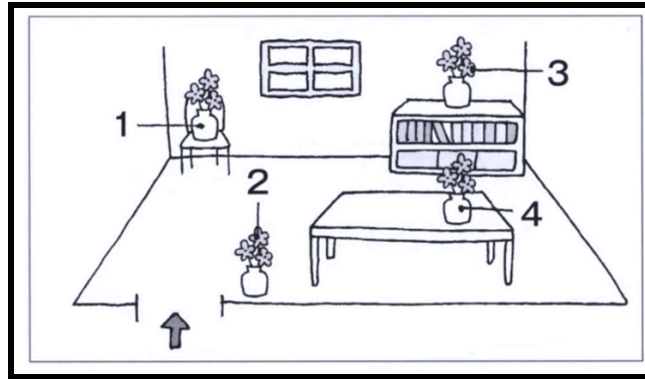

Conversation:

- Japanese:
 - 女: この部屋、少し花を飾りたいと思ってるんですけど、どう思いますか？
 - 男: そうですね。どこに置くつもりですか？
 - 女: あの椅子の上 はどうですか？ いい場所に見えるんですが。
 - 男: うーん、でもその椅子、少し汚れてますよ。掃除してないし、ちょっと見栄えが悪いです。
 - 女: そうですね。じゃあ、テーブルの横 はどうですか？ すぐに目に入るし、いい場所だと思います。
 - 男: んー、でもそこは狭くて、花瓶を置くと物を置くスペースがなくなるかもしれません。
 - 女: なるほど。じゃあ、あの本棚の上 はどうですか？ 高いから、花がよく見えますよ。
 - 男: うん、でも本棚の上もホコリがたまってますね...掃除しなきゃ。

- 女: だったら掃除して、そこに置いてくださいよ！それが一番いい場所だと思います！
- 男: 分かりました、掃除してから本棚の上に置きますね。
- Romaji:

 - Man: Hmm, sounds good. Where do you plan to put them?
 - Woman: How about on that chair ? It looks like a good spot.
 - Man: Hmm, but that chair is a bit dirty. I haven't cleaned it, and it doesn't look very nice.
 - Woman: Oh, I see. Then how about next to the table (? It's right in sight and seems like a good place.
 - Man: Hmm, but it's a bit cramped there. If we put the vase there, there might not be space for other things.
 - Woman: I see. Then how about on top of that bookshelf ? It's high up, so the flowers will be more visible.
 - Man: Yeah, but there's dust on top of the bookshelf too... I need to clean that.
 - Woman: Then clean it and put it there! I think that's the best spot!
 - Man: Alright, I'll clean it and put it on top of the bookshelf.

Question:

- Japanese: 花瓶はどこに置きますか？
- Romaji: Kabin wa doko ni okimasu ka?
- English: Where will they place the vase?

Man: Oh, I did that, but I also think I need practice problems.

Woman: That's right. The practice problems are on page 30.

Man: Is that so? But doing the homework is also tough, so it might be difficult to do both.

Woman: Then let's prioritize the homework and do the practice problems afterward.

Man: That's true. In that case, I'll finish the homework early and then tackle the problems on page 30.

Woman: That's a good idea! Let's do our best!

N3 Level Listening Questions:

At the N3 level, listening questions become even more detailed and complex. Conversations now cover not only everyday situations but also slightly more abstract or nuanced topics, with speakers discussing opinions, preferences, and conditions in more depth.

- Question Asked: Similar to N4 and N5, the question is presented before the audio starts. However, at this level, the question might ask for more specific information or require the listener to make inferences based on what is said.
- Audio Played: The conversation is longer and often involves multiple exchanges between speakers. The dialogue may include subtle hints, conditions, or conflicting viewpoints. Listeners must pay attention to details and relationships between different pieces of information.
- Question Repeated: After the conversation, the question is repeated to remind the listener what they should focus on.
- Time to Choose: Time is provided after the question to select the right answer. Choices may require the listener to think about implied meanings, opinions, or how different details fit together, rather than simply recalling basic facts.

Question Style:

- Picture-based Questions: Similar to the earlier levels, picture options are given, but the details in the conversation can be more intricate. Listeners may need to interpret spatial relationships, preferences, or outcomes described in the dialogue to choose the right picture.
- Expanded Dialogues with Multiple Perspectives: At N3, dialogues are more in-depth. They may involve differing opinions or changing conditions, requiring listeners to follow the flow of conversation closely. The questions often require interpretation of suggestions or reasoning behind decisions rather than just identifying a location, time, or object.
- Contextual Understanding: Conversations might be about hypothetical scenarios, subtle emotional cues, or actions that have multiple steps, making it necessary to grasp not only what is said but the underlying context as well.

- 男: 確かに。でも、先にエアコンをつけておいたほうがいいんじゃないですか？お客様に暑い思いをさせたくないですし。
- 女: それもそうですね。でも、エアコンが動いてる間にお茶を出してお客様を落ち着かせるのもいいかもしれません。どう思いますか？
- 男: うーん、そうですね。じゃあ、まずはお茶を出して、お客様をリラックスさせて、それからエアコンをつけましょうか。
- 女: そうですね。その後で資料のコピーをして、会議の準備を整えましょう。
- 男: じゃあ、最初にお茶を出して、次にエアコン、それから資料ですね。それで大丈夫ですね？

- Man: Let's see. First, have you turned on the air conditioner in the meeting room? It's a hot day, so we need to make sure it's comfortable.
- Woman: Oh, I haven't turned it on yet. But before that, I need to copy the documents.
- Man: That's true. But shouldn't we turn on the air conditioner first? We don't want the customer to feel uncomfortable in the heat.
- Woman: That's a good point. However, while the air conditioner is cooling the room, we could serve tea to help the customer relax. What do you think?
- Man: Hmm, you're right. Let's serve tea first to help the customer settle in, then we can turn on the air conditioner.

- Woman: Yes, that sounds good. After that, we can copy the documents and finalize the preparations for the meeting.

N2 Level Listening Questions:

At the N2 level, listening becomes more challenging with a focus on natural, faster-paced conversations. The topics extend beyond everyday scenarios to include work-related issues, social topics, and opinions, requiring more nuanced understanding.

- Question Asked: Similar to lower levels, the question is provided before the audio begins. However, the focus is often on extracting deeper meanings, intentions, or identifying the purpose of the conversation, making the task more complex. Speakers are not just simply a man and a woman but more characters.
- Audio Played: The audio at the N2 level includes more realistic conversations that may contain overlapping speech, interruptions, or background noise, reflecting real-life situations. These conversations are longer and may include subtle hints about the speaker's feelings or goals. Additionally, you may encounter complex monologues such as explanations of processes or opinions that require you to not only grasp the details but also understand the speaker's overall intent. Speed is faster.

- Question Repeated: After the audio, the question is repeated, giving the listener a chance to reflect on the conversation and confirm the specific information they need to focus on. However, this is not true for all questions.
- Time to Choose: Once the question is repeated, time is provided to carefully evaluate the options. The choices may require interpreting not only what was said but also why it was said, or the implications behind the conversation.

Question Style:

- Realistic Conversations: At N2, the conversations mimic real-world interactions, which may include background noise or overlapping speech, requiring greater focus and the ability to filter out distractions.
- Purpose-Based Questions: Many questions ask about the reason behind a statement or conversation, requiring listeners to understand the deeper context or the speaker's motivation.
- Complex Monologues: Longer explanations or opinions challenge the listener to retain both specific details and the main idea, testing both comprehension and retention skills.

さて、今回の授業では、学期末にまとめとしてレポートを書いてもらいますが、そのテーマを先週私たちの街に決めましたね。

- 先生: それは良い質問ですね。次回の授業では、この街に長く住んでいる商店街の方から昔と今の変化について話を聞く予定です。
- 学生: 具体的にどんなことを聞くのでしょうか？
- 先生: 例えば、昔の商店街の様子や、どのように変わってきたのか、今の商店街の魅力などについて話してもらいます。
- 学生: それなら、私たちもその話を聞いて、レポートに反映させたいですね。
- 先生: そうですね。そのためには、今日の授業で各自が町の歴史や商店街の発展について詳しく調べてみましょう。
- 学生: 図書館に行って調べるということですね？
- 先生: はい、その通りです。各自、図書館で本や資料を探して、どんな情報が得られるかを考えてください。
- 学生: 資料を見つけたら、次回の授業でその内容をクラスで話し合いますか？
- 先生: そうです。各自が調べた内容を持ち寄って、皆で意見を交換しましょう。それでは、しっかりとやりましょう！

- Teacher: Hello everyone. Today, we will start the Japanese class. Now, for this class, you'll be writing a report as a summary for the end of the term, and last week we decided that the theme would be "Our Town."
- Student: Yes, that's right. What kind of things should we investigate about our town?
- Teacher: That's a good question. In the next class, we will hear from people who have lived in this town for a long time, such as shopkeepers, about how the town has changed from the past to the present.
- Student: Specifically, what topics will we be asking about?
- Teacher: For example, we will discuss the atmosphere of the shopping district in the past, how it has changed over time, and the current attractions of the shopping area.
- Student: In that case, we want to reflect that in our reports as well.
- Teacher: Exactly. To prepare, each of you should research the town's history and the development of the shopping district in detail during today's class.
- Student: So, we will go to the library to look for information?

- Teacher: Yes, that's correct. Each of you should search for books and materials in the library and think about what kind of information you can find.
- Student: If we find the materials, will we discuss the content in class during the next session?
- Teacher: That's right. We will all bring the information we've researched and exchange opinions together. Now, let's work hard!

Male International Student: Yes, I remember. How did the interview go?

Female International Student: It started off well, but then I began to notice the interviewer's expression, and I got so nervous that I couldn't speak.

Male International Student: That sounds tough. If you have any other strategies, I'd love to hear them.

Female International Student: Since you've passed a few job interviews already, you might have some good advice.

Male International Student: Well, I read in a psychology book that if you consciously change your expression, it can actually change your mood too.

Female International Student: In that case, why not try forcing a smile when you speak?

Male International Student: That makes sense; if I'm smiling, I might feel more positive, and it could ease my nerves. The interviewer probably won't be able to look scary at a smiling student, right?

Female International Student: Also, it's helpful to create a memo of what you want to talk about before the interview.

Male International Student: Yes, the advice about making a memo was really useful for me. I managed to greet properly at the beginning as well.

Female International Student: That's great! Practicing with Japanese friends beforehand is important too. Prepare your interview based on that.

Male International Student: Yes, I understand. Thank you!

In the N2 Japanese proficiency exam, some questions require test-takers to engage with audio content without any prior written context. Candidates will first listen to a segment of audio that covers a particular topic or conversation. Following this, a question will be posed regarding the main idea or key details of what was just heard. After the question is presented, the answer choices will be provided, and candidates must select the option that best reflects the content of the audio. This format tests not only listening comprehension but also the ability to quickly grasp the essence of spoken Japanese, making it crucial for learners to develop strong auditory skills in real-life communication scenarios.

Japanese:

- 男: では始めます。
- 女: 一番、子供向けの絵本について話していますね。最近、子供の絵本も電子書籍がたくさん出ているけれど、私たちはあんまり使っていないのよね。目に悪い影響があるんじゃないかと思って心配しているの。
- 男: そうなんですか。吉田さんの家ではどうですか？
- 女: うちでは、子供のお気に入りの本は紙の本と電子書籍の両方を買っているよ。病院やレストランで待っている時間や長時間の移動中には、電子書籍が必需品だと思うの。持ち運びが楽だし、たくさん持っていけるからね。
- 男: 確かに、紙の本だと重くて大変ですよ。でも、家ではどちらを読むことが多いんですか？
- 女: そうなの。だから、全体的に見ると、紙の本を読んでいる時間の方が長いと思うわ。
- 男: なるほど、それは面白いですね。具体的には、どのように使い分けていますか？
- 女: 基本的には、外出先では電子書籍、家では紙の本って感じで使っているけど、どちらの良さも活かしているつもりよ。
- 男: そうなんですね。それを聞いて、参考になりました。

- Woman: First, we are discussing children's picture books. Recently, there are many e-books available for children's books, but we don't use them much at home. I'm worried that they might have a bad impact on the eyes.
- Man: Is that so? How about your family, Yoshida-san?
- Woman: In our home, we buy both paper books and e-books for our children's favorites. I think e-books are essential during waiting times at hospitals or restaurants, and for long trips because they are easy to carry and you can bring a lot of them.
- Man: Indeed, it can be difficult with paper books since they are heavy. But do you read more paper books at home?
- Woman: Yes, that's right. So, when I look at the overall picture, I think we spend more time reading paper books.
- Man: I see, that's interesting. Specifically, how do you differentiate their use?
- Woman: Basically, we use e-books when we are out and paper books at home, but I think we are utilizing the strengths of both formats.
- Man: Is that so? Hearing that has been helpful.

In the N2 Japanese proficiency exam, certain questions assess listening comprehension through a structured audio exchange. In this format, test-takers first hear a prompt that instructs them on how to engage with the material, followed by a scenario that presents a specific situation. Afterward, candidates listen to a response and must choose the most appropriate reply from a set of options. This question type evaluates not only the listener's ability to understand the spoken language but also their capacity to infer context and emotional nuance from the dialogue.

N1 Level Listening Questions

At the N1 level, listening comprehension becomes highly complex, requiring a deep understanding of intricate language and cultural nuances. The topics range from advanced work-related discussions to social commentary and abstract concepts, demanding engagement on an intellectual level.

- Question Asked: The question is posed before the audio starts, focusing on discerning subtleties in meaning and intentions behind statements. Conversations may involve multiple characters with distinct perspectives, rather than just simple exchanges.
- Audio Played: The audio features authentic interactions that may include overlapping dialogues, interruptions, and background noise, reflecting real-life situations. These longer conversations reveal subtle hints about speakers' emotions and motivations and may include extensive monologues requiring comprehension of both specific details and overarching ideas. Speed of speech increases.
- Question Repeated: After the audio, the question is repeated, allowing listeners to reflect on the discussion and focus on essential details, providing clarification for the task ahead. However, this is not true for all questions.
- Time to Choose: Listeners then have time to assess answer choices that require interpreting both explicit content and implicit motivations behind the speakers' remarks.

Question Style:

- Realistic Conversations: Dialogues closely resemble authentic interactions, with environmental sounds and competing speech, challenging focused listening.
- Purpose-Based Questions: Many questions ask for the intent behind statements, necessitating an understanding of broader context and motivations.
- Complex Monologues: Extended discourse challenges listeners to retain specific facts and principal themes, testing advanced comprehension and retention abilities.

このところ新たなヒット商品が出せていません。既存の商品の売上は順調ですが、会社が飛躍するためには新しいものを生み出す必要があります。伝統にしがみつかず、これまでにないものを提案することは新しい文化の想像だと言っても過言ではありません。皆さん、批判を恐れずにどんどん挑戦してください。今はパソコンで文章を書くことが当たり前になっていますが、昔は文字を書くといえは手だったわけです。え、つまり今の当たり前は昔は奇抜なものだったかもしれません。周囲に驚かれるようなものこそ会社にとっては宝です。

English: The president is speaking at a stationery company.

Recently, we haven't been able to release any new hit products. The sales of existing products are steady, but to make the company thrive, we need to create new ones. It's not an exaggeration to say that proposing something unprecedented without clinging to tradition is the creation of a new culture. Everyone, please challenge yourselves without fearing criticism. Nowadays, writing with a computer is the norm, but in the past, writing meant using your hand. In other words, what is commonplace now might have been considered unconventional in the past. Things that surprise those around you are treasures for the company.

Question:

- 社長が言いたいことは何ですか
- Shachou ga iitai koto wa nan desu ka?
- What does the president want to say?

1. 会社の業績を回復させてほしい

Japanese:

- スタッフ1: 教室で日本語を教えるボランティアがなかなか増えませんね。市の広報士に定期的にボランティア募集の案内を載せてるんですが、少し前に1人見学に来ましたけど、入ってもらえなかったんですよね。その日はいつもよりさらにボランティアの数が少なかったんです。

- スタッフ2: ボランティア1人でいろんなレベルの学習者5人ぐらいに対応してたので、その様子を見て自分には難しそうって知り込みしちゃうみたいですね。
- スタッフ1: じゃあ教え方のマニュアルでも作りましょうか。マニュアルを作って対応できる問題じゃないですね。学習者のレベルも目的も色々だから。
- スタッフ2: そうですね。じゃあボランティアの種類を分けて募集するのはどうですか？日本語を教えるボランティアと会話の相手をするボランティア。会話のボランティアならやってみようと思う人もいるかもしれませんよ。
- スタッフ1: どちらかと言うと教えられる人に来てもらえるといいんですけどね。去年まで頑張ってくれてた大学生のボランティアが就職を気に何人か抜けちゃったのが残念ですね。言語学や教育学を学んでたから教え方も上手でしたし。
- スタッフ2: 市内の大学に募集のポスターを貼らせてもらいましょうか？大学生だとまた就職とかでやめちゃうんじゃないですか。
- スタッフ1: まあまずは応募してもらわないとね。市の広報士よりも目に止まりそうだし、やってみましょうか。今回はボランティアの種類は分けずに募集してみましょう。

English:

- Staff 1: It seems that the number of volunteers teaching Japanese in the classroom isn't increasing much. I regularly post volunteer recruitment notices in the city's public relations, but a little while ago, someone came to observe, but they couldn't join. That day, the number of volunteers was even fewer than usual.
- Staff 2: One volunteer had to handle about five learners at different levels, so it seems they felt it would be too difficult after seeing that situation.
- Staff 1: Then should we create a teaching manual? It's not a problem we can solve just by making a manual. There are various levels and purposes for the learners.
- Staff 2: That's true. Then how about separating the types of volunteers for recruitment? We could have volunteers for teaching Japanese and those for conversation partners. Some people might want to try being conversation volunteers.
- Staff 1: It would be nice if we could get people who can teach. It's a pity that some of the university student volunteers who had been helping until last year left due to job concerns. They were good at teaching because they were studying linguistics and education.
- Staff 2: Should we put up recruitment posters at local universities? University students might also quit due to jobs.
- Staff 1: Well, we have to get them to apply first. It seems like it would catch their eye more than the city's public relations, so let's try it. This time, let's recruit without separating the types of volunteers.
